To Whom it May Concern,

This is a personal recommendation for Jake McConnell of Frontline Processing. Shopping for a credit card processor is very complicated, time consuming and not to mention stressful. Already frustrated with talking to a couple of out of state processors I decided to give Frontline a call. I didn't have much of an expectation of this company being very competitive because they are just a small in state company.

I couldn't have been more wrong in my assumption. From my first call to the very last, I have received nothing but very professional and courteous service. Someone I know answers the call right away and is always able to answer my questions. Frontline was more than competitive with any other processor that I contacted when shopping for service.

Jake walked me through all the expenses and compared them to my existing service. He was very helpful and honest about what to expect when my first statement came in.

This drives home the point of the value of shopping locally. I myself am a small local store and very much appreciate when people check with me before buying elsewhere.

I would very much recommend anyone shopping for credit card processing to give Jake a call. You will be glad you did!
